The postal and army messages will be things back home with her. She remembers being in a big house, and has repeated many times that there were lots of other little girls there. She had good things to eat and drink, and candy, too, she says, and the lady gave her a pretty doll and a baby carriage and a new hat. But she couldn't bring those nice things back home with her. The Bohierts moved yesterday from Delancey street to No. 98 Orchard street, where they will live with their relative, Mrs. Nellie Stressburg.

Officials and others differ greatly in their theories of the case and offer many sug-gestions. Some believe the child was abducted by agents of well-to-do but childless people, who later became frightened at the notorlety of the case and returned her. It is also thought that she may have strayed from home and been found by some motherly woman, who returned her secretly as soon as she learned where she belonged. Some others believe she has been in a home for children or a similar institution from the fact that she so often mentions the other little girls whom she saw.

The only mark on any of these goods is in the inside of the shoes, which were both stamped in green ink, "7 E, 432." There were heavy brass nails in the heels, Her petticoat had been laundered by her unknown friends.

If the police can learn the whereabouts of the two women who were instrumental in restoring the child, the mystery will be cleared; otherwise one week of the child's life will remain a blank to her and to everybody else.

NEW MOTOR FOR CABLE CARS. TO ASPHALT FIFTH AVENUE.

Several Broadway cable cars have been sent to Worcester, Mass., where, in the shops of the American Wheelock Engine Company, they are being equipped with an invention that, it is thought, will make them more comfortable for passengers and more economical for the road.

Under the body of these cars has been placed a reservoir, in which will be stored compressed air, which will be the motor power that may supplant the cable. The new system has been attached to several cars, now in Worcester waiting to be shipped to New York.
